PHD PROGRAM IN FRENCH

OVERVIEW

The French graduate program offers a strong critical, cultural, and historical orientation. In addition to their respective specialties in French and Francophone literature, the faculty pursues research in related disciplines such as philosophy, aesthetics, psychoanalysis, rhetoric, intellectual history, and postcolonial studies. The PhD program's interdisciplinary approach responds to both divergent and convergent tendencies within French Studies, as witnessed by the multiplication of fields of knowledge and the specialized languages that accompany them, as well as the text's capacity to confirm and exceed its defining concepts and disciplinary boundaries.

While mastery of all areas of knowledge is not within the reach of a single individual, the ability to analyze the discursive strategies of the various fields - their vocabularies, their structures, their presuppositions, and their goals - can be. Criticism, or critical theory, is the discipline that takes as its object of study discourse itself, in an attempt to recognize and evaluate the functions of the different languages of knowledge when they are deployed in various texts and also to understand when it is feasible and productive to mobilize them in one's own analyzes.

Thus we have designed an interdisciplinary curriculum to help the student to: (1) engage in conversations across disciplinary boundaries; (2) understand the nature of French and Francophone literatures and the theory that informs and shapes our understanding of these literatures; (3) become acquainted with critical traditions that have in recent decades oriented literary critical studies; and (4) gain proficiency in the theory and practice of second language acquisition.

In keeping with this orientation, graduate courses reflect the faculty's interest in viewing French literature from multi-disciplinary critical approaches, emphasizing both the close reading of texts and modern theories of interpretation. Moreover, through cooperation with programs in Comparative Literature, English, Philosophy, Women's, Gender, and Sexuality Studies students can readily incorporate an interdisciplinary focus into their coursework and dissertation. A certificate in Comparative Literature, Women's, Gender, and Sexuality Studies, Jewish Studies or Psychoanalytic Studies is available for students who seek to combine their Ph.D. in French with literary and theoretical issues outside the historic or generic boundaries of French literature.

Finally, the French PhD program wishes to gratefully acknowledge the Anne Amari Perry fund and the Thomas M. Hines fund for their generous support recognizing scholarly excellence in French Studies.

FACULTY

Geoffrey Bennington: Asa G. Candler Professor of Modern French Thought (DPhil. in French, Oxford University. Modern French Literature and Thought, Eighteenth Century Novel, Literary Theory, Deconstruction.

Author of Scatter 2: Politics in Deconstruction (2021); Kant on the Frontier: Philosophy, Politics, and the Ends of the Earth (2017); Scatter I: The Politics of Politics in Foucault, Heidegger, and Derrida (2016); Géographie et autres lectures (2011); Not Half No End: Militantly Melancholic Essays in Memory of Jacques Derrida (2010); Deconstruction is Not What You Think (ebook, 2005); Other Analyses: Reading Philosophy (ebook, 2005); Open Book/Livre ouvert (ebook, 2005); Late Lyotard (ebook; 2005); Frontiers (Kant, Hegel, Frege, Wittgenstein) (ebook, 2003); Interrupting Derrida (2000); Frontières kantiennees (2000), Legislations: the Politics of Deconstruction (1995), Jacques Derrida (with Jacques Derrida) (1991); Dudding: des noms de Rousseau (1991); Lyotard: Writing the Event (1988); Sententiousness and the Novel (1985).

Vincent Bruyère, Associate Professor of French (PhD in French Studies, University of Warwick, UK.) Humanistic intersections between sustainability, biotechnology, disability, and healthcare.

Author of La différence francophone – de Jean Léry à Patrick Chamoiseau (Presses de l'université de Rennes, 2012), and Perishability Fatigue: Forays in Environmental Loss and Decay (Columbia University Press, 2018), and Environmental Humanities on the Brink: The Vanitas Hypothesis (Stanford University Press, 2023).

Achille Castaldo, Assistant Professor of Italian (PhD Romance Studies, Duke University). Associated faculty in Film and Media Studies. Research Interests: 19th – 21st Century Italian Literature. Aesthetics. Film Studies. Mediterranean Studies. His work investigates the relationships between ideology, literature, and visual arts, focusing in particular on the impact of social conflicts on narrative forms.

His current book project, titled Excessive Reality and Literary Experience: Naples and its Narratives in the Years of the Interregnum, treats Naples as a point of reference to explore the traumatic post-WWII years and literary and cinematic works produced during this time

Sandra Descourtis, Assistant Teaching Professor (PhD, University of Wisconsin-Madison). Interdisciplinary scholar-practitioner. She received her M.A. from the University of Arizona and her Ph.D. in Second Language Acquisition from the University of Wisconsin-Madison. She teaches all levels of French language as well as a pedagogy seminar for graduate teaching assistants (LING 505).

Her research focuses on French language variations (especially argot and verlan), raciolinguistics and teaching practices. She also works on multilingual language awareness and translanguaging in K-5 education. More broadly, her research interests include sociolinguistics, plurilingualism, and language ideologies.

Professor Descourtis has presented at various national and international academic conferences and recently co-authored a chapter entitled “Utilisation du photocollage comme méthode reflexive sociales des enfants plurilingues” (2022, EME Edition). Her forthcoming chapter entitled “French Variations and Language Weaponization in US Higher Education” will be published in the International Journal of Literacy, Culture, and Language Education.

Valérie Loichot, Samuel Candler Dobbs Professor of French and English, and Chair, Department of French and Italian (PhD, Louisiana State University). Core faculty in Comparative Literature, Associate faculty to the Department of Women’s, Gender and Sexuality Studies. Francophone and Anglophone literature, culture, theory, and aesthetics of the Americas (Greater Caribbean, U.S. South); Édouard Glissant.

Author of Orphan Narratives: The Postplantation Literatures of Faulkner, Glissant, Morrison, and Saint-John Perse (University of Virginia Press, 2007); The Tropics Bite Back: Culinary Coups in Caribbean Literature (University of Minnesota Press, 2013; winner of MLA’s Aldo and Jeanne Scaglione Prize for best book in French and Francophone Studies, 2015); and Water Graves: The Art of the Unritual in the Greater Caribbean (University of Virginia Press, 2020). Director and Editor of Entours d’Édouard Glissant (Presses universitaires du Septentrion, 2013). Her current book project investigates aesthetics and ecology in Glissant’s manuscripts.

Elissa Marder, Professor of French and Comparative Literature (PhD, Yale University). Associate faculty to the Department of Women’s, Gender and Sexuality Studies; Affiliate faculty to the Department of Philosophy. Founding member of the Emory Psychoanalytic Studies Program. Nineteenth and twentieth-century literature, feminist and psychoanalytic theory, photography and film.

Author of Dead Time: Temporal Disorders in the Wake of Modernity (Baudelaire and Flaubert) (Stanford University Press, 2001); The Mother in the Age of Mechanical Reproduction: Psychoanalysis, Photography, Deconstruction (Fordham University Press, 2012); Time for Baudelaire (Poetry, Theory, History), eds. E.S. Burt, Elissa Marder, Kevin Newmark. Yale French Studies vol. 125/126 (Spring, 2014); Literature and Psychoanalysis: Open Questions, ed. Elissa Marder. Paragraph Volume 40; Issue 3 (November 2017).

Through psychoanalysis, deconstruction, and feminism, her work engages with texts and questions that challenge the traditional conceptions of temporality, birth, technology, sexual difference, and the limits of the human.

Johanna Montlouis-Gabriel, Assistant Professor of French and Decolonial Pedagogies (PhD Romance Languages, The University of Georgia).

Research Interests: Black French Women writers, playwrights and digital artists. Digital humanities. Afrofeminism. Blogging. Graphic Novels.

Her current book project, titled The Afrofeminist Creative Praxis of French Women, analyzes theatre, film, literature, and digital media to illuminate the process through which Black female authors, actresses, subjects, and filmmakers challenge stereotypes associated with portrayals of Black women and their bodies in postcolonial France and its media and propose new pedagogical interventions in an ostensibly color-blind country that seeks to enforce a universalist agenda.

Claire Nouvet, Associate Professor of French (PhD, Princeton University). Medieval literature, psychoanalysis, critical theory.

Author of Abélard et Héloïse: la passion de la maîtrise (Presses Universitaires du Septentrion, 2009); Enfances Narcisse (Galilée, 2009); Editor of Literature and the Ethical Question (Yale French Studies, 1991); Co-editor (with Julie Gaillard and Mark Stoholski) of Traversals of Affect: On Jean-François Lyotard (Bloomsbury Press, 2016); co-editor (with Zrinka Stahuljak, and Kent Still) of Minima Memoria: In the Wake of Jean François Lyotard (Stanford University Press, 2007).

Subha Xavier, Associate Professor of French (PhD, University of Wisconsin-Madison). Interim Director and Core faculty at the Institute of African Studies and the Global and Postcolonial Studies Program, Affiliate faculty in Film and Media. Global French literature, Migration and Diaspora Studies; Literature, and film from Sub-Saharan Africa, Asia (China and Vietnam), Canada and the Caribbean; Translation Studies, Literary Theory.

Author of The Migrant Text: Making and Marketing a Global French Literature (McGill-Queen's UP, 2016).

She is preparing two new book projects, Transcultural Fantasies: China, France and the History of Sino-French Literary Exchange which reexamines literary history between China and France over the last century through the lenses of migration and translation; Wretched of the Sea: Migrant Boat Narratives in International Context considers refugee crossings from an international perspective, reconsidering the legacy of slave and war narratives in the context of present-day mass migrations and climate change

COURSE WORK

Students are required to take courses, as follows: eight the first year (four per term); six the second year (three per term). Of these courses ten must be taken within the department; furthermore, students must take at least one course in each field covered by the Doctoral Qualifying exam reading list. They may be allowed to audit one course per semester, in addition to courses taken for credit.

Papers

Graduate students must write at least one paper per semester in French, if their native language is English, and at least one paper per semester in English, if their native language is French. Those whose native language is other than English or French may decide which of those two languages to consider as “other,” but all papers must be in English or French, in the proportions specified above.

Incompletes

Incompletes are strongly discouraged. Student must obtain permission in advance from the professor of the course in which they wish to take an incomplete. Incompletes are to be given only at the discretion of the professor, and a professor may refuse to grant any incompletes. Any papers for which incompletes are taken must be turned in according to the following schedule: By January 15th of the following term for incompletes in fall term courses, and by June 15th of the same year for incompletes taken in spring term courses. If the work is not completed within one calendar year, the Graduate School will change the grade from I to F. Only the Graduate School can change the grade of F. To change the grade, the instructor must make a request to the Graduate School, citing compelling reasons for the grade change.

TEACHING ASSISTANT TRAINING AND TEACHING OPPORTUNITY (TATTO)

In order to assure its graduate students a good preparation for teaching, Emory Laney Graduate School requires that:

- (1) students attend the TATTO 600 (Teaching Assistant Training and Teaching Opportunity) seminar (two days in August) at the beginning of the second year (and before doing any teaching, including serving as a TA)

- (2) enroll in the seminar “Seminar on Pedagogy” during the fall term of the second year.

Note that the final department TATTO 610 requirement must be completed before the semester in which the candidate applies for degree.

After successfully completing the TATT 600 workshop (August, prior to start of second year), students will enroll in the program’s FREN 505 Seminar on Pedagogy. During their second year, students will teach one course each term (fall, spring). A designated faculty member will oversee student teaching and will meet regularly with students.

To reflect their TATTO teaching obligations, students will be enrolled in TATT 605 (Teaching Assistantship) for both the fall and spring terms of the second year. During the third-year students will be assigned to teach one course each term and will be enrolled in TATT 610 (Teaching Associateship). Students are not obligated to teach their fourth year but will be required to teach one final course their fifth year and will be enrolled in TATT 610 (Teaching Associateship).

In order to assist students with their teaching, assigned faculty will conduct teaching observations every semester. This information is provided and discussed with students, so that they may use this information to further enhance their teaching skills.

JONES PROGRAM IN ETHICS (JPE)

The Jones Program in Ethics (JPE) at Emory University. The JPE provides students with a foundational, cross-disciplinary introduction to the question of ethics for their research, training and careers. It is a required, integral part of the curriculum in LGS doctoral programs across the humanities, social sciences, biomedical and natural sciences, public health, nursing and business.

- JPE 600 takes place at the beginning of the academic year in August for first year students.
- JPE 610 sessions take place throughout the academic year. These workshops will be sponsored by the LGS, the Emory Center for Ethics, or other campus partners, and will include any other relevant occasional lectures or workshops. Students register for these sessions individually and participation is recorded on the student's transcript. These workshops may be completed after candidacy.

- Program-Based Instruction: A minimum of 6 hours of program-based ethics material. The disposition of this discussion time is at the program's discretion. These discussions may take place within existing courses or take the form of professionalization workshops, and brown-bag seminar series. Regular guest lectures and professionalization events sponsored by the French department complement the course offerings. Because they constitute an integral part of the curriculum, students' participation and attendance is mandatory. These six hours must be completed before the student enters candidacy. For more information on the JPE see: <https://gs.emory.edu/professional-development/jpe/index.html>

CANDIDACY

Candidacy status is an indication that a doctoral student has developed sufficient mastery of a discipline to produce an original research contribution in the student's field.

Eligibility

To be eligible for candidacy, a student must meet the following requirements:

1. Complete all program requirements for candidacy: coursework and other training required by the degree program, including program required JPE training
2. Complete the qualifying examination
3. Complete the Oral Exam
4. Complete TATTO 600, TATTO 605, and JPE 600 (also see item 1). TATTO 610 and JPE 610 may be completed after entering candidacy.
5. Resolve any Incomplete (I) or In Progress (IP) grades
6. Be in good standing with a minimum cumulative 3.5 GPA
7. Have earned at least 54 credit hours at the 500 level or above

Timing

Students should enter candidacy as soon as all requirements have been completed. Students must reach candidacy by September 15th of their fourth year. Students who do not meet this deadline will be placed on academic probation, will not be eligible for PDS funds, and may forfeit financial support. These sanctions will be lifted when the student enters candidacy.

Procedure

Students enter candidacy by submitting the application to enter candidacy, available on the LGS website. The application requires programs to affirm that all program requirements have been met (1-3 above), and LGS affirms that remaining requirements have been met (4-6). Students are considered “in candidacy” when the Dean has approved the application to enter candidacy.

EXAMS AND DISSERTATION COMMITTEE

Doctoral Qualifying Exam

Students must take the Doctoral Qualifying exam at the beginning of their third semester. Students will have the equivalent of a long weekend to write the exam in English or in French. If questions were given out on a Thursday at 4:00 p.m., for example, students would have until Monday at 9:00 a.m. to return the completed exam. The objective of the exam is to check general knowledge of French literature. The DGS will choose the questions to be included on the exam from among those submitted by the faculty in their respective specialisms. The candidate will select five topics out of eight (based on the reading list) and will write a 3-5 page essay per question, typed and double-spaced. Each consulting professor responsible for the preparation of the topics will grade the exam. (Note: No student having more than one Incomplete for a course will be permitted to take this exam; any student having two or more incompletes at the time he or she should normally take the exam will be expected to petition for a postponement.)

Candidates must receive a passing grade on all five questions in order to pass the exam. If the candidate fails one question, they may retake that question (i.e., a different question covering the same section) at a date to be agreed upon with the responsible faculty member. If the candidate fails two or more questions, s/he must retake the whole exam at the end of the current semester.

Ph.D. Oral Exam and Candidacy

Once a thesis director is chosen, students must consult with their director to form an examination committee to consist of three graduate faculty members, with an optional, though recommended, fourth member from another graduate program or university. The committee will be chaired by the student's thesis director. Students will then compose a reading list of approximately 12-14 titles per topic, in consultation with the individual members of the committee. The professor responsible for each topic will question the student during the Ph.D Oral exam. The Ph.D. orals are to be taken in the semester following the completion of course work. The exam will consist of three or four parts lasting 20 minutes each and will be conducted in French or in English.

All members of the committee must agree that the candidate has passed all portions of the exam in order to grant a global pass. If the members of the committee agree that the candidate has not satisfactorily performed on one or two sections, the student must retake the failed section or sections within two months of the date of the original exam, before the same committee. If the candidate fails three or more sections of the exam, they must retake the entire exam within a period of two months and before the same committee. In the case that one member of the committee is unavailable at the time of the retake, the candidate may designate another professor as their replacement. In no case may more than one member of the original committee be replaced. Neither the entire exam nor any portion of it may be retaken more than once.

The chair of the committee shall report the results (i.e., a brief evaluation of the candidate's performance on each section, and the consensus of the committee regarding pass/failure) in writing to the DGS within two days of the exam (initial exam and any retake). The DGS may provide the candidate with a copy of this report if the candidate so desires.

No postponement will be permitted except for family or medical reasons. Only after having passed the Ph.D. oral exam will the candidate be allowed to present a Ph.D. dissertation proposal.

PH.D. DISSERTATION PROPOSAL

As soon as possible, and no more than six months after the Ph.D. oral exam, the candidate will present a written dissertation proposal (of no more than 12 pages plus a bibliography), which will be discussed with a dissertation committee composed of three readers, with a recommended (though optional) fourth reader from outside the department or university. In this written proposal, the candidate should clarify the nature of their thesis, demonstrate its relevance, define its methodology, situate it in terms of existing scholarship and include a tentative break-down into chapters. Any proposal failing to meet these formal requirements will be returned for re-submission. The fourth reader may be from outside Emory but in this case, the department will assume no financial obligation. To request an outside member to serve on their committee, students must follow the LGS guidelines (www.gs.emory.edu/academics/policies-progress/dissertation.html). The discussion of the proposal will last approximately an hour.

Dissertation Committee

Students who have met all program requirements for an approved dissertation proposal should file a dissertation committee form to obtain LGS approval for their committees. Students must obtain approval no later than March 15 of their fourth year. Students who do not meet this deadline will be placed on academic probation, will not be eligible for PDS funds, and may forfeit financial support. These sanctions will be lifted when the student files a dissertation committee form. For more information on how to submit the LGS Dissertation Committee Signature Form, and obtain the required signatures consult <https://gs.emory.edu/academics/policies-progress/dissertation.html>.

Changes to the Committee

If the membership of a dissertation committee needs to change, students should submit a change of dissertation committee form as soon as possible. When a student submits a completed dissertation, the membership of the dissertation committee must match the members listed on the most recent dissertation committee form on file with the Laney Graduate School.

DISSERTATION AND COMPLETION TIME

The dissertation will be read by three readers from the department. A fourth reader from outside the department is optional, though recommended. The readers will be chosen by the candidate in consultation with the thesis director. A formal report will be submitted only if the readers find the dissertation unacceptable. If the dissertation is accepted, students should feel free to meet with the readers to discuss it.

Students are expected to complete their dissertations and apply for their degrees within six years. If a student has not completed the degree at the end of the seventh year, the program may grant a one-year extension. The program must submit notice of this extension to the Dean, no later than August 1st of the seventh year (before the eighth year). The notice must contain a completion timeline signed by both the student and the dissertation committee chair or co-chairs. Students who enroll for this extension year will be responsible for some tuition, as detailed in 2.2.1 (A) of the LGS Handbook.

If a student has not completed the degree at the end of the eighth year, the student may continue work for at most one additional academic year and only with approval from the Dean. To obtain approval, the program must submit a request to the Dean no later than August 1st of the eighth year (before the ninth year). The request must (a) outline the reasons the student has not completed their dissertation, (b) consider whether the student needs to repeat any part of the qualifications for candidacy or obtain approval of a new dissertation prospectus, and (c) present a detailed completion timeline signed by both the student and the dissertation committee chair or co-chairs. Students who enroll for this extension year will be responsible for some tuition, as detailed in 2.2.1 (A): <http://gs.emory.edu/handbook/index.html>.

Dissertation defenses are not required and remain at the discretion of the candidate, their advisor, and dissertation committee.

TERMINAL M.A. DEGREE

Our graduate program in French, like most of the graduate programs at Emory, is a Ph.D. program only, and we do not admit students seeking the Master's degree. As it sometimes happens, however, that a student who is very advanced in the program decides not to continue through the dissertation stage, there are provisions for earning a terminal Master's degree. There are two means of obtaining a terminal M.A. in this Department:*

- 1) by attaining ABD status
- 2) by completing all course work (i.e., fourteen 4-hour courses, passing the Ph.D. qualifying exam (written "reading list" exam), and, after successfully petitioning the Graduate Faculty for permission to write an M.A. thesis on a specified topic, satisfactorily completing such thesis and having it approved by the faculty.

*Note that the Laney Graduate School has established minimum requirements without which no department may grant the M.A. degree, but explicitly recognizes the departments' rights to establish their own criteria beyond these minimal prerequisites. To quote from the Laney Graduate School Handbook 2019-20, section 3.C: The Laney Graduate School sets minimum requirements for the Master's degree. Students must satisfactorily complete at least 30 credit hours at the 500 level or above. Some programs, especially those offering terminal Master's degrees, require considerably more credit hours than the minimum requirement. The fulfillment of course activity alone does not lead to a Master's degree.

FOREIGN LANGUAGE REQUIREMENT

In addition, all students must demonstrate proficiency in one foreign language in addition to English, French, and/or their native tongue. This is usually done by taking a course in that language at the 200-level or above, though in some cases it is satisfied via a translation exam administered by the department of the language in question. Medievalists must satisfy the requirement in either Latin or Old French. Students are expected to fulfill the language requirement by August 1st of their fourth year of graduate studies. Students who do not meet the third language requirement deadline (August 1st of Year 4) will receive an Unsatisfactory grade in their FREN 799R and be placed on academic probation. They will not be eligible for PDS funds and may forfeit financial support. These sanctions will be lifted when the student meets the program's language requirement.

IMPORTANT DEPARTMENTAL POLICIES

1. Papers written for coursework should be approximately 10-15 pages in length. (Students are reminded that in 10-15 well-written pages, one can present and develop a cogent argument. Furthermore, conference papers are generally limited to a presentation of 20 to 25 minutes, which represents 8-10 double-spaced pages, so learning how to work within such a space/time constraint will constitute valuable experience for the future).

2. Regarding the participation of graduate students in Conferences, we have adopted the following policy:

a. Students are discouraged from submitting papers to conferences before the completion of their course work. Any student wishing to present a paper at a conference before completing their course work must request permission to do so from the DGS and, when applicable, their faculty advisor or the Director of Graduate Studies if they have not chosen an advisor as yet.

b. Professional Development Support (PDS) funding for conferences is available from the Graduate School. Applications must first be approved by the French DGS. Once approved by the DGS, students then submit applications to the Laney Graduate School for review. Funding is contingent upon LGS final approval. Students may apply for up to $650 per conference, with a career cap of $2,500.

c. Professional Development Support (PDS) funding for special training and major research projects is also available from the Graduate School. Interested students should consult the DGS about the application process. Professional Development Support funds are available to support three categories of professional activities:

conference participation, special training that is not available at Emory, and research that incurs extraordinary cost. For further information regarding competitive and non-competitive PDS funding, please visit the Laney Graduate School website at: <http://www.gs.emory.edu/resources/professional.php>

3. Attendance at French Graduate Program-Department-sponsored lectures is required of all graduate students.

DEPARTMENT AWARDS

Citizenship Award

The Citizenship Award recognizes each year an outstanding Ph.D. student in French who has contributed to the intellectual life of the department through organization of program events and active participation in all departmental events.

The Perry Dissertation Completion Fellowship (PDCF)

In the fifth year of study, continuing students in good standing will have the opportunity to apply for the Perry Fellowship, which provides sixth-year stipend support. For more information of the PDCF see: <https://www.gs.emory.edu/professional-development/fellowships/advanced.html>

The Thomas M. Hines French Studies Prize

When endowed funds are available, the Thomas M. Hines French Studies Prize recognizes outstanding student(s) in French who are writing their dissertation(s).

GRIEVANCE POLICY FOR LANEY GRADUATE SCHOOL

“Students who have a grievance related to some aspect of their program in the French graduate program should report it to the Director of Graduate Studies. The student should describe the grievance and relevant details in a letter addressed to the DGS, who will try, if possible, to resolve the grievance in a conversation with the student and relevant parties. If this is not successful, the Director will appoint a committee of three French faculty members (or faculty members outside the French department if the situation warrants) or use an existing standing committee, who will review the grievance and propose an appropriate response. If it is impossible to resolve the grievance within this committee or within the framework of the French administrative structure, the Director will forward the grievance to the Office of the Senior Associate Dean of the Laney Graduate School. From this point forward, the grievance will be handled according to the Grievance Procedure outlined in the Laney Graduate School Handbook. If the issue is with the Director, the student should go directly to the Senior Associate Dean of the Laney Graduate School.”

HONOR/CONDUCT CODE

Please view the Laney Graduate School link to the Grievance Policy and Honor/Conduct Code (pages 34-51):

<https://gs.emory.edu/includes/documents/sections/handbook/handbook.pdf>

STUDENT SUPPORT SERVICES

Office of Accessibility Services (OAS)

“Emory provides all persons an equal opportunity to participate in and benefit from programs and services afforded to others. The Office of Accessibility Services (OAS), part of the Office of Equity and Inclusion, assists qualified students, faculty and staff with obtaining a variety of services and ensures that all matters of equal access, reasonable accommodation, and compliance are properly addressed.” OAS “is committed to providing access to campus resources and opportunities to allow students with disabilities to obtain a quality educational experience.” Qualified students need to register with OAS and make a request for services. Confidentiality is honored and maintained. (Emory OAS website):

Ombuds Office

“The Emory Ombuds Office is here for you as a confidential, safe space where you can discuss issues and where those communications are kept confidential to the fullest extent possible. A resource for faculty, staff, and students, we invite Emory community members at every level to bring us concerns about misunderstandings, incivility, or possible wrongdoing. Our role is to promote mutual respect, civility, and ethical conduct, and to alert university leadership to concerns that might justify policy changes.”

Office of Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion

“The Office of Diversity, Equity and Inclusion (DEI) ensures Emory University’s compliance with Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action, Title IX, the Vietnam Era Veterans’ Re-adjustment Assistance Act, and the Americans with Disabilities Act federal regulations. DEI also monitors and executes the university’s Equal Opportunity Policy. DEI is committed to promoting a fair and accessible campus environment for the Emory University community through collaboration with our university partners.”
